

URGENT!

If you have fed your dog or cat canned or pouched food at any time since November from any of the following manufacturers, please be aware that some of these foods are under an urgent recall.

The supplier has issued a warning that these foods may cause kidney damage and even death in cats and dogs.

If you think your pet may have been exposed, schedule an appointment for exam, bloodwork, and urinalysis.

If you have any of these products on your shelves, return them to your store. Check for your product UPC code at the menufoods website. For further information, go to the website: www.menufoods.com, or ask us for further information.

If you do not have computer access, we can give you information over the phone or send it to you by fax or mail. Our staff will be updated daily on this changing story, so check back with us for further information.
